May 30, 2023 -
GA based Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C would like to reach out to Valdosta residents who may be contending with the aftermath of the wrongful death of a loved one. One of the biggest issues surrounding wrongful death is the financial strain it places on those left behind. The Valdosta firm does what it can to lessen the burden of wrongful death by helping clients get adequate compensation. This leaves the firm?s clients to focus on healing from the trauma caused by the sudden loss of a loved one.

?When a loved one is killed due to the intentional, reckless, or careless actions of another person or business, it is legally considered a wrongful death (also called accidental death),? the firm says. ?If you have lost a loved one in this way, we are truly sorry for your loss. But, you are not alone. The experienced, Georgia wrongful death attorneys at Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. have helped families just like yours move forward after a tragic event. We can help you recover compensation for medical bills, funeral expenses, lost wages and other financial obligations you may be responsible for in the future.?

Some of the most common causes of wrongful death include motor vehicle accidents, medical malpractice, workplace accidents, nursing home abuse and unsafe premises. Most occur as a result of the misconduct of a person or group of people who are normally responsible for ensuring the safety of those around them. This means that someone is liable for the loss, and with the help of an experienced legal team, it is possible to make sure that the responsible party is held responsible and that something is done for the victim?s family.

As with most cases that wind up in court, wrongful death is a complicated subject. There is always a certain level of dispute over the actual facts of the case, especially where there is no clear evidence pointing to a certain conclusion. Those responsible, often a company or some other powerful entity, are often backed by large, experienced legal teams whose whole job is to pass the wrongful death off as an unavoidable accident. This is why it is important to have a legal team on the victim?s side that knows exactly how to handle such cases and how to get the maximum compensation out of any wrongful death or personal injury case.

Kenneth S. Nugent, PC?s office in Valdosta put the best medical experts and other specialists to work investigating the cause and circumstances of a loved one?s death. They ensure that all the necessary paperwork is filled out correctly and in a timely fashion. The firm also ensures that all benefits to which the loved ones of a person wrongfully killed are entitled are made available. Lastly, the firm helps ensure that others will not suffer from the same series of failures in the future. Holding those responsible accountable for their actions (or inaction) essentially obliges them, legally, to change their behavior or take steps to ensure the safety of others in the future.
