Infinit Lash Products, a business based in Del Mar, California, has released a blog post offering advice on where to keep eyelash extension glue. In the article titled, "How Weather Affects Your Eyelash Extension Adhesive," they discuss how to store the adhesive properly so that it will perform its function as expected. The article points out that humidity and high temperatures can negatively affect the eyelash extension adhesives so it is important to keep them in a cool, dark place.

Tasha Land, founder of Infinit Lash Products, says, "We want to make sure that when you use your lash extension adhesives, they will work as you expect them to. Thus, you need to know where to store them so that their properties are not affected by the heat and humidity. It is best to use your adhesive in a stable environment and avoid temperature fluctuations. If it is too hot or too humid, the viscosity and adhesion can be altered."

In the article that discusses where to store eyelash extension glue, it is advised not to store the eyelash extension adhesives anywhere too cold or too hot. According to the article, the best temperature for these adhesives is between 64 to 77 degrees Fahrenheit. Thus, it would be a good idea to keep them in a dark drawer with a silica pack or dry ice to keep the moisture away and preserve their freshness.

Meanwhile, the most suitable relative humidity for the adhesives is between 50 to 60 percent. Those who use these adhesives in their business are advised to get a digital hydrometer for their working space, including a humidifier or diffuser for the room. If the hydrometer indicates that the humidity is getting too low, they can use the humidifier or diffuser to pump moisture into the air to bring the humidity back up to its optimal range. It may also be a good idea to add a few drops of essential oil to the water so that the room will smell pleasant, particularly for customers. But for those whose environment usually gets too humid, they will need to get a dehumidifier to bring the humidity down to the optimal range.

It should also be noted that exposure of the adhesive to oxygen can reduce its life. Exposure to oxygen can change its viscosity so it is advisable to keep the lid secured tightly. Leaving it exposed to the air for long periods of time can cause the glue to become thick and gummy until it can no longer be used. The shelf life of the adhesive after the bottle has been opened is six weeks, unless it is already getting tacky or gummy before then. Thus, it is advisable to replace the bottles frequently to make sure that those used are always fresh and will function optimally.

The shelf life of the adhesive can be prolonged by keeping unopened bottles in the freezer. They should not be stored in the refrigerator because this allows moisture to get in, which will have a negative effect on the ingredients. And an unopened bottle should be removed from the freezer for four hours before using it to ensure that it has reached room temperature.

Meanwhile, the quality of the adhesives has been attested to by customers. Ashanti gave it a five star rating and said, "Works well. On my first bottle. Dries quickly with no sticking provided lashes are isolated properly. Retention is good. Fumes are not strong in my opinion (I was concerned about that). No client complaints of burning, or excessive watering during application. I also had a full set applied on myself as well and have had no issues. I am satisfied with this product and would order again."

Infini Lash Products wants to assure customers that their products do not contain any latex or formaldehyde as these can be harmful to people. Also, the company ensures that each ingredient of their products has been personally sourced and salon tested to ensure top quality.

Those who need to know more about these lash extension glue can visit the Infini Amazon page or their company website. Or they can contact them on the phone or via email.
