April 16, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Perseverance Pest Control has issued a warning to residents of Fishers, Indiana, that spring time means bugs are becoming more active. Thus, residents are advised to obtain the services of a pest control company, first to conduct an inspection to determine the pests that are present in the home or yard, and then provide treatment and the establishment of a barrier to prevent the pests from returning.

Sarah Wenger, one of the owners of Perseverance Pest Control, says, "Practically all of us love spring time. That is understandable because it means that winter is finally over and we can finally go outdoors to enjoy the sunshine and the greenery. Unfortunately, animals and insects are also anticipating spring time. Many of the pests that have hibernated during winter are now starting to wake up and become active again, which means that homes and other properties are in for an invasion of a large number of pests. That is why many people in Fishers and nearby areas are likely saying they want to find a company providing pest control near me."

Some of the common pests in Fishers, Indiana are aphids, earwigs, mosquitoes, spiders, ants, ticks, millipedes, termites, and rats. Each of these have their own unique characteristics as to how they can enter the home, what they do that can cause damage to the home or endanger the health of the residents, and how they can be eliminated.

For instance, mice and other rodents tend to chew on certain parts of the home like electrical wires. This may not only cause a power failure for the home but it may even cause a fire. Rodents can also bring with them viruses, parasites and bacteria that can be harmful to humans and pets. Not just that but rodents can also cause damage to the electrical wiring of cars, including the seats and other parts.

It is therefore imperative to get rid of rodents to avoid such problems. What is unique about the services provided by Perseverance Pest Control is that they establish a barrier, which will prevent the rodents from coming back. Another pest that can cause havoc in the home are bed bugs. Not only are their bites painful but they may also carry some diseases. That is why, bed bugs also need to be eliminated from the home and prevented from coming back. This is also true for mosquitoes because these can carry very dangerous diseases.

Meanwhile, reviews from past customers of Perseverance Pest Control have been primarily positive. In fact, so far, they have a perfect 5.0 rating on Google. This means every customer who posted a review gave them the highest rating of five stars. For example, Sarah S. says, "Writing this a couple months after my last service. Their methods truly work. I thought the price was very affordable especially since they came out 3 times. Both techs we had were great."

Ursula R. says, "I have only good things to say about this pest control company. I had scheduled an appointment then got a call a couple days early to let me know of a cancellation in case I wanted to move my appointment sooner. Of course I did! They did a great job and the treatments worked. I haven't seen a roach for quite some time. Thank you!"

The company employs a four-step process to eliminate pests in the home and in the yard. First of all, they conduct a full inspection to find out the pests that are present. Second, they provide treatment to eliminate the pests. Third, they offer protection of the perimeter so that the pests will not be able to return. And, finally they will perform regular monitoring.

Perseverance Pest Control serves the counties of Delaware, Hamilton, Hancock, Johnson, Boone, Madison, Shelby, Hendricks, Morgan, and Marion. Those who want to learn more about the pest control services offered can visit their website or contact them either by phone or via email.
