We are first time homeowners with mold in our house and they were super professional and very efficient! I found them by chance just googling mold restoration companies with good reviews and they had the best reviews and now I know why.?

One of the key services they provide is water damage restoration, which is essential after a disaster like flooding, plumbing leaks, sewage backup, and appliance malfunctions. Their dedicated professionals are committed to delivering efficient and comprehensive restoration services that will not just address the current damage but also help prevent future problems. Kristin Newhouse from Newhouse Restoration says, ?Our focus is on minimizing the impact of water damage on your property and belongings, while also ensuring a swift, seamless restoration process. By partnering with Newhouse Restoration, you can trust that you?re in the hands of experts who care about your well-being and the long-term health of your living space.?

Meanwhile, a home can get mold-infested if it has been exposed to a significant amount of water and moisture. This begins when the mold spores have too much water and moisture that they can feed upon. Unfortunately, a large quantity of mold spores in the home they can be harmful to the health of people. Mold spores are so small, they get easily blown by the wind and may get inhaled and cause respiratory health issues.

Furthermore, mold is a common type of fungus that breaks down matter, which means that a huge amount of mold inside the home can result into the degradation of vital structures of the home, such as ceiling, walls, and more. It is advisable to hire professionals to eliminate the mold because the spores can easily be spread to other parts of the home if the cleaning process is not done correctly. They will start by eliminating the water and moisture before getting rid of all traces of the mold colonies. If the mold damage is too serious, it may be necessary to dispose of certain items in the home, including furniture.

Newhouse Restoration can also offer fire / smoke damage restoration services. Kristin Newhouse says, ?Unfortunately, damage created by fire goes beyond the char and smoke you see initially. We look for smoke discoloration on your walls, ceiling, and household goods. It can yellow even strong finishes and tarnish metal quickly. We?ll actively rid the area of lingering smoke to restore air quality and to prevent even further damage to your belongings.?

They advise homeowners to never try to do the cleaning up after a fire. This is because various kinds of biohazards can be present as products of burning. Touching or inhaling these chemicals may result into respiratory and other health issues. The fire and smoke cleanup professionals from Newhouse Restoration are knowledgeable and experienced on how to perform the cleanup safely and efficiently.
