

Avant-Garde Glass Announces Glass and Slat Fencing Services in Sydney

May 21, 2019

May 21, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Avant-Garde Glass in Sydney, New South Wales, has announced that they are extending their range from glass fencing to include aluminium slat fencing to accommodate the changing needs of Sydney residents. The company states that home owners around Sydney are enjoying a mix of both glass and aluminium fencing around their houses, and that it was an essential offering to bring to market to keep up with changing consumer demand.

Sam Palliya, a director of the company says, "Although our customers love our frameless glass products, we have had an increase in requests for aluminium slat fencing to accommodate various consumer tastes and designs. There is no denying that there has been a slowing down in the Australian construction market, thus offering a light weight and cost effective alternative to glass allows customers to meet the fencing requirements without sacrificing on aesthetics."

Depending on the utility of the fence, governmental regulations in Australia mandates that certain safety precautions be required. For example, fencing around swimming pools mandates that pools in certain areas such as Western Australia, Tasmania, New South Wales and other regions, have a fence that is at minimum 1200mm above the finished ground level, and that no gaps in the fence are above 100mm in order to child proof the fence. Alternatively, glass balustrades are bound by a separate regulation which requires railing to be incorporated into the barrier at certain heights.

Those looking to construct a new pool, or those that have an existing pool without a pool barrier in place will need to ensure that one is constructed to stay compliant with pool fence regulations, says Palliya. More information on the standards and the regulations can be seen on the Avant-Garde Glass website.

The company states that more on them and the services that they provide can be seen on their official website or on their social media pages. Those interested can follow Avant-Garde Glass Sydney or visit them on their website for information about their fencing, pricing and to schedule an obligation free consult and quote and to schedule a consultation.

The company provides custom CAD designed layouts and a variety of stock and custom panels that will fit into any design or space. Palliya states that they are now offering their frameless glass fencing and aluminium slat fencing in Sydney as well as throughout other areas around New South Wales. He states that the company is able to consult directly with homeowners, to ensure that they understand the variety of options available and help them determine the most appropriate design for the aesthetics and safety purposes. Palliya states that all of their frameless glass fencing products meets the strict requirements of Australian standards, put in place for keeping swimming pools safe. He says that all of their panels are made from 12mm toughened glass, and their stainless steel spigots are made from 2205 grade stainless steel - the highest grade of stainless steel available for pool spigots. This material and hardware passes the strict safety standards set forth by the government and provides an aesthetically pleasing fence to surround pools.

Palliya states that the company's team ensures that all customers and homeowners are completely satisfied with their fencing when it is completed, and provides a certificate of compliance which is a requirement for fencing certification in NSW. He states that the company both delivers and installs fences, and that the company offers consumers a free consult for any DIY jobs. Layouts and fence designs are built specifically with each homeowner in mind to maximise aesthetic appeal and usability of the space along with ensuring compliance has been met.

Palliya states that those who do not yet have a swimming pool fence and those who are interested in learning more about their high-quality and attractive glass fencing options can visit them on their website to learn more. Those who are interested can also contact the company through their various social media pages or contact them directly using the information on their website to schedule a free, on-site consultation to learn more about what specific design may be best for their unique needs.

Homeowners in Sydney can find out more about Avant-Garde Glass and the various glass fencing solutions online or visit their various locations. Avant-Garde Glass states that they work with the highest quality materials and skilled contractors to ensure that any fence build is of the highest calibre.
