June 19, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The company recently announced it has expanded and now offers emergency, residential and commercial electrician services in Harrisburg, PA. This expansion includes an entirely new service division that will focus on providing fast and courteous electrical repair and maintenance services.

With this expansion, the company explained that it would be able to better serve the residents and business owners of Harrisburg. The company mentioned that it would be closer to the people who need its fast, reliable electrical services. Being closer to the client means that the electrician can be there when the need arises rather than having to wait.

Eliminating waiting times is one of the primary goals of the company, which should translate into better, quicker, more efficient services.

Joseph White, CEO of Thomas Edison Electric, has been spearheading the company's expansion initiatives. He states, "it is essential, not only for the health of the company but also to meet continuing and increasing demands from our clients, to take our electrical services closer to the people who need them. Whenever someone has an emergency, the need is then and there, not in hours or days.?

This forward-looking approach has helped the company to offer licensed electricians who are nearby and available 24 hours per day, seven days per week, 365 days out of the year. Mr. White continued, ?we get lots of calls from places outside of the major metropolitan areas where we usually operate in Pennsylvania.? He added, ?we wanted to make sure that our licensed electricians can get to the person who needs them as quickly as possible.? The company?s reasoning in general and Mr. White?s, in particular, is that expansion is the only way to meet the rising demand for quality electricians who can provide a great service quickly and efficiently.

Meanwhile, the high quality of Thomas Edison Electric?s services has been attested to by past clients. Those who are interested can visit the home page and view the handwritten ?Service Experience Report Cards? submitted by past clients to see that its crews are on time, very polite, helpful and knowledgeable.

One client who gave the company a ?Very Satisfied? rating and 5 out of 5 on a scale of 0 being the worst and 5 being the best noted, ?? very satisfied with the electrician and his work.? Another satisfied client noted, ?Eric was excellent in every respect. This project was long overdue.?

The above are but a few of the very satisfied ratings the company and its electricians have received from its clients. Thomas Edison Electric prides itself in its unparalleled clients service experience and satisfaction. The company understands that a satisfied client is a potential returning client and someone who would recommend the company.

When asked whether the company has other expansion plans in mind, Mr. White responded, ?We are always looking to cut travel time for our electricians. When a client has an electrical emergency, the electrician has to be as close as possible to service the need.? He continued, ?it has always been our idea to provide three things for our clients ? quicker, better and longer lasting! The only way to do this is by expanding to areas where our services are needed.?

The company is also aware of the fact that, while it is meeting the demands of its present and future clients, it is also creating employment opportunities, which stimulates growth in the area. Not only is expansion good for the company, it is also good for the local economy and community.
