

Top We Buy Houses Company in Nashville Appears on the ePodcast Network

August 26, 2019

August 26, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Dependable Homebuyers is the fastest growing We Buy Houses company in Nashville. The innovative real estate investment firm has grown by leaps and bounds. It buys houses throughout Tennessee and has a presence in almost all states around the country. It has started buying land recently. The owner and founder of the company, Evan Roberts appeared on the ePodcast Network to talk about their experiences and to share precious advice to simplify quests of sellers and buyers in and around the city of Nashville.

Evan Roberts was interviewed extensively and he shed light on all pertinent issues in the real estate market, particularly the housing sector. He shares a plethora of tips in the podcast that was primarily about discussing how owners can sell a house that is not in its prime condition. Unpleasant houses are extremely difficult to sell. They are the least preferred options on listing services. Ordinary buyers are rarely interested in distressed properties. Roberts and his team at Dependable Homebuyers has purchased all types of homes, including hoarder houses and foreclosed residential properties. He shares his experiences and lays out the path that people can take to sell their houses easily and quickly. Interested homeowners can read a recent press release they published at

After recording the interview, Roberts said that he was nervous about the podcast since he had not done anything similar. He is comfortable dealing in real estate as simplifying complex deals is his forte. He is not much of a public speaker but his experience has been satiating. He said that as the interview started and he got to discuss the nitty-gritty of real estate deals, the whole process became simpler and he enjoyed his time recording for the podcast. The podcast is now live. Roberts may appear again on the epodcast network and he is gearing up for more similar experiences that will allow his firm to reach out to more people.

Dependable Homebuyers buys all types of houses but only from the owners. The firm does not deal with realtors. They are not looking for houses through listing services. Roberts has a team of real estate experts and consultants, property inspectors and researchers as well as legal and financial experts. The private company has been buying houses in Nashville and the surrounding areas for nine years now. Homeowners can directly contact the firm and consult with Roberts or his team. All consultations are nonobligatory. Homeowners can sell their houses to the firm without paying any commission, service fee or even closing cost. The firm bears all these expenses.

The podcast discusses the right time to sell houses in Nashville. Roberts explains the market conditions and how these should be factored in to understand the potential value of a property prior to a sale. His company can buy houses in seven business days from the time a seller accepts the offer. He also emphasizes that his team is looking for any type of house. The location or condition of a house does not jeopardize the prospect of a sale. For more details, contact Dependable Homebuyers directly.
