

Barefoot Retirement Is Helping People Answer: Am I Saving Enough For Retirement?

August 17, 2015

August 17, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Barefoot Retirement, LLC, a retirement company in Round Rock, Texas has launched a free retirement CheckUp through their website. They want to make sure all people are able to determine if they are making the right financial decisions today to ensure they have secured their financial future for tomorrow. Through their checkUp, they hope to let people know if they are prepared for retirement or not. They can also show pre-retirees how to improve their retirement plans.

"42% of Americans have never had a checkup to determine their retirement savings needs," says Doyle Shuler from Barefoot Retirement, LLC. "In many cases, other checkups are expensive, lengthy and complicated to complete. Once completed, other retirement checkups often require speaking to a financial advisor on the phone. We wanted to change all of that with our product. Get your free CheckUP now to see what your retirement looks like."

Barefoot Retirement is trying to stress to people that they are likely to spend between 25 to 30 years of their life in retirement. Therefore, it is very important to make sound financial decisions now, while you can. They must know whether they can reach their financial goals with their current retirement plans, or whether they need to make some changes or adjustments. While Barefoot Retirement can provide advice on these changes and adjustments, consultations are not required. Rather, after completing the free, quick, online checkUP, people can choose to contact Barefoot Retirement for further questions and information if they wish to but it is not required.

The checkup requires the completion of 10 easy to answer questions, which typically takes about 2 to 5 minutes to complete if you know your basic information. These answers are then passed on to a specialist, who will provide a detailed retirement report within about 24 hours. This report is sent by email in a PDF format, and is generally between 13 and 17 pages in length. The report paints a very clear picture letting you know if you are currently on track to reach your retirement goals or not.

"We are a no-obligation company," adds Doyle Shuler. "We do not require people to speak with one of our advisors if they prefer not to. Rather, people can choose to contact us if they have questions or would like more information. And our checkup is completely free and there is no obligation at all."

Barefoot Retirement has also includes their bestselling free book with their current checkup. This means that customers will be able to receive even more detailed information on how prepared they currently are and what their retirement picture will be once they reach retirement age. They will also be told if and when their retirement funds will run out, and what they can do in order to prevent that from happening. Essentially, the goal is to make sure people are able to enjoy a financially secure retirement when they retire.
