Golden Peak Recovery has received a new 5-star review for its addiction treatment services. The Glendale, Colorado rehab facility often receives praise for its evidence-based and trauma-informed approach that ensures each client is fully prepared to transition to the next level of care.

Steve Marcus left his thoughts on Google Reviews, saying: "When I needed to get my brother help for his drinking they were able to act quickly and get him in the very next day. It's been 3 months since he left the program and I have my old brother back."

Located at 4411 E Kentucky Ave, Glendale, CO 80246, Golden Peak Recovery provides addiction treatment through one-on-one support programs tailored to a patient's specific goals and needs. The facility has behavioral health specialists and supporting staff members who work together to create a safe and healthy environment for people struggling with substance abuse problems.

The company helps clients remain focused on long term sobriety by providing continued care services including partial hospitalization (PHP), intensive outpatient programs (IOP/OP), and aftercare planning.

This client-centered company recognizes that the key to effective treatment is dealing with mental and emotional sources of substance abuse. This premier treatment center uses evidence-based therapies and supplemental programs to help break the cycle of drug and alcohol abuse.

Golden Peak Recovery offers residential treatment that helps create a recovery-focused atmosphere for patients. It eliminates exterior distractions and triggers. The rehab facility's small populations allow for more direct attention from master-level clinicians and staff members. Peer support through group therapy sessions also creates a community focused on healing through shared experiences and positive connections.

It also has partial hospitalization for clients that need to transition smoothly into full independence after completing the residential level of care.

Golden Peak Recovery's aftercare planning includes housing arrangements, securing ongoing therapy and counseling, finding local support groups, and creating a relapse prevention plan.

During treatment, clients are given a solid foundation for the future through proper aftercare planning, life skills training, as well as employment and educational support.

Another review from a former client named Greg McGinnis encourages people to try it out. "They gave me another chance at a new life," said McGinnis. "Just call."

Substance abuse recovery is one of self-discovery and growth. Overdose-related deaths in adults under 50 years old are still growing in number. Golden Peak Recovery provides access to comprehensive behavioral health and addiction treatment that can help change the course of a person's future for the better. Rehabilitation is all about addressing substance abuse and co-occurring mental health disorders to help create a solid foundation for a life of sobriety.

With medical professionals and addiction experts on board, Golden Peak Recovery lets patients breakthrough personal and social barriers keeping them from maintaining their sobriety. Offering residents of Denver quality addiction treatment services for drugs and alcohol, Golden peak Recovery is making a positive impact on its patients. It opens the door to new opportunities and a second chance to get things right.
