March 06, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Rodents in San Jose are fairly common both in homes and in businesses throughout the Santa Clara County area. Rats and mice cause a lot of damage if not dealt with right away and they're a health hazard to people sharing their personal environments with these pests. First Rate Pest Control of San Jose has announced they are providing rodent control services to properties in the area, looking to get rid of rats or mice for good.

"Rodents are a pest that will not go away on their own. You can't ignore them and wait for them to move along. They will breed and continue infesting an area or property as long as they're allowed to. If you're noticing small rats or mice then you likely have a more serious problem than you realize because these could be the babies of the family hiding out in your property," the manager at the company said.

There are some pests that will quickly invade neighborhoods if property owners don't take care of the situation when it arises. The rats or mice in someone's property could have come from their neighbor's house, or they could have simply chosen that property to invade. Regardless, something will need to be done if the homeowner wants them gone.

"Our pest control technicians will inspect the property to determine where they're entering. These means of entry need to be fixed so they can't keep coming inside. Many property owners try to tackle those inside, and while this is important, if you don't keep them from coming in the problem will persist and they'll keep coming inside," the manager added.

It's possible for a property owner to do their own inspection but the company advises letting a professional handle that task. They know what to look for and where exactly to look because they're aware of the most common entry points on properties; both homes and businesses.

"Our pest control San Jose CA services will help you get control of the rodents inside but we can also help you keep them out in the future. And that's very important if you don't want to share your property with unhealthy rats and mice. They're small enough to squeeze through the tiniest of openings and we have the experience to identify these trouble spots in a structure,? the business owner stated.

To learn more about the rodent control services provided by First Rate Pest Control of San Jose property owners can visit them at pestcontrol-sanjoseca.com or contact them by phone. The business owner stated they can perform inspections and provide their findings with a recommendation on how to approach the issue effectively and efficiently.
