March 12, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Bed bugs are a nuisance and have started showing up in cities all across Florida. Pest Control of Tampa has announced they are offering bed bug extermination for residential and commercial properties throughout the Hillsborough County, Florida region. These little bugs can invade any property by hitchhiking on people and items. That's how they're able to pop up in just about any location.

"The best way to make sure you never have a bed bug problem is through regular inspections, even if you have never experienced an issue with these bugs. It's simply the most effective way to ensure you never have to," the business owner stated.

Oftentimes bed bugs make their presence known before they infest a property because they feed on people while they sleep. This means that residents wake up with bites, unsure of what they could be but likely not considering the dreadful bed bug.

"There are other bugs that can bite you while you're sleeping, although not necessarily intentionally. For example, you could roll over on a small spider and be bit accidentally, or you could have fleas present that are the culprit at hand," the manager said. "You want to rule out the possibility of the bites being caused by bed bugs by doing an inspection on your own, or hiring a professional Tampa bed bug exterminator," he added.

When property owners seek out professional pest control in Tampa, FL for help with bed bugs or even other pests, it can be easier to obtain and maintain a pest-free property. The business owner stated that some common pest issues can be managed through DIY means, but not all pest issues.

"Bed bugs are not a pest that will go away completely, even through DIY means, without the help of a professional bed bug exterminator, unless the problem is caught immediately. If you find a bed bug, do an inspection right away or call a professional right away. Take action immediately, don't hesitate or wait," the manager stated.

To schedule bed bug or pest control services with Pest Control of Tampa, property owners can visit pestcontroloftampa.com or contact the business by phone. The business owner encourages residents to contact a professional exterminator right away if they suspect a pest issue of any kind.
