Immortalitea, leading on-line seller of gourmet teas and herbs, announced today the arrival of the 2015 harvest of organic dried white mulberries from Turkey. Immortalitea added organic dried white mulberries to their product line shortly after their White Mulberry Leaf Tea was shown on the Dr. Oz show in 2013. Blog posts on the company website indicate the move was motivated by customer demand for one-stop shopping for White Mulberry products.

Immortalitea has since become one of the leading sellers of organic dried white mulberries in North America. As a small business, Immortalitea purchases their products in small quantities rather than in large shipments.

A company spokesperson explained that while this model sometimes results in shortages, as happened in 2015, it also ensures that the company has only the freshest available harvest and highest quality.

The company sells organic dried white mulberries on leading retailer Amazon.com and on their own Immortalitea site.
