

Plumbing Edmonton Adopts A Fresh Look For Their New Website

March 31, 2020

March 31, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Edmonton, Alberta based Plumbing Edmonton is delighted to announce the launch of their new website, which will help their customers find important information easily as well as feature important updates and announcements. The family-owned Edmonton company provides plumbing and drain services to households and businesses around the clock.

Plumbing Edmonton has built the new website from the ground up, designing it to work across any platform and including many features that will enable visitors to receive a great experience as they browse. For example, customers can call the company directly from any phone enabled device or smartphone. They can also click on the map link and get directions via Google to their offices should they need to call in.

Peter Shears, speaking on behalf of Plumbing Edmonton, says, "We thought it was time to join the 21st century online. We use the latest tools and technologies to serve our customers, and so we felt it was time to show that we can do the same for them online. Our new website makes it very easy for customers to contact us directly when they need to, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. They can even schedule an appointment via our Contact page. We are very excited about the possibilities and will be adding more features as time goes on and we take feedback into account. Remember to check out our blog articles?they might just save you some money.?

Their latest blog post covers 10 essential things everyone should know about plumbing leaks. It advises people to check their pipes; doing this periodically is a good way to spot when something has changed, and more importantly, it keeps them informed of their current condition. This is particularly important when they have a clogged sink. Checking the pipes before taking any action can be a lifesaver. This useful information and many other tips like it are available to anyone reading the company?s blog.

Those who want to find out if Plumbing Edmonton services their area can check whether they are in the highlighted section in this Google Map reference. Shears continues, ?As we provide emergency services around the clock, we often meet people for the first time in the worst of circumstances, and unexpectedly. You can count on us to provide an honest estimate and be aware of the total cost before we start. We are not going to make a drama out of any emergency or charge hidden fees or subcontractor expenses. We are a local company, so you know we will stand behind all the work we perform. Our team is licensed and insured, and we will stick to the estimate we provide before beginning the project.?

The website also provides answers to many of the common questions people have about their plumbing, drains and other water-related concerns, including why the water pressure in their kitchen sink faucet is poor and what causes pipes to rattle. They provide practical, pragmatic answers to many of the things people wonder about, like what to do about the substance which builds up on their shower heads, a problem almost every household in the world faces at one time or another. Homeowners looking for Alberta experts can rest assured that their team?s workmanship is guaranteed. Furthermore, they provide upfront and flat rate pricing, with no hidden charges.

Shears concludes, ?We are committed to providing outstanding professional services to our community and will stand by our workmanship. As a family-owned, local firm, you know that you can count on us for an honest and fair quote before we start work. We will stick to that estimate as well provide a guarantee on our workmanship and any parts needed. If you find you have a problem with your plumbing or drains, we are just a phone call away.?
