Santa Fe, NM ? Amid the worry and stress caused by the spread of COVID-19, many businesses are moving to take extreme precautionary measures to protect both customers and employees from exposure. As an essential services business, Santa Fe shipping experts, The Mail Box Store Santa Fe is no exception. Management at the store has implemented special procedures set in place to help prevent the spread of germs.

The Mail Box Store in Santa Fe would like customers to know that they are still operating under normal business hours and full services as usual. As a member of the Retail Shipping Associates (RSA), The Mail Box Store is required to follow a stringent cleaning protocol in addition to the recommendations released by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). These new procedures include, but are not limited to, increasing the periodic cleaning of all surfaces and wiping down any pens, copiers etc. after use. Furthermore, the team at The Mail Box Store is monitoring the ongoing response to COVID-19 in their community and how any changes to this situation may affect employees and customers.

Because shipping and mailing centers are considered essential, The Mail Box Store is continuing all services as normal. The team is still processing mail and packages as well as any other orders that are received with expedition. With the recent opening of their new 24-hour mailbox building, The Mail Box Store also has openings available for mailbox rentals in Santa Fe. This new building allows customers to access their mail outside normal business hours in a well-lit, secure location.

The Mail Box Store Santa Fe is working to keep their customers and community updated with any new developments regarding COVID-19 business and safety practices. For more information on precautionary measures being taken by the store, customers can give them a call at (505) 930-7766 or visit their website <https://www.tmbssantafe.com/>.
