Centerville, Utah based Utah Disaster Specialists is reaching out to the community to share an update on one of their most recent water damage inspection jobs.

The Utah Disaster Specialists have once again reassured their position as industry leaders in the restoration and cleanup fronts by sharing the details of one of their most recent water damage inspection jobs. The inspection itself was carried out in a rental home in the Provo area, where new tenants had just moved in to find dampness in the laundry room and clear signs of an ongoing water leak. While this started out as a routine inspection, it turned out to be much more complicated, requiring detective work on part of the company to get to the bottom of the issue. Details on what a water damage inspection project entails can be found here: <https://www.utahdisasterspecialists.com/water-damage-cleanup-provo-utah/> .

"This job is perhaps the most evident example of why it is always important to rely on qualified professionals to inspect your property," says Daryl Olsen, owner of Utah Disaster Specialists. According to Olsen, they found the source of the water leak during their initial inspection, identifying the issue as a broken pipe in the laundry room.

“When we communicated this to our client, his first thought was that this may have occurred during the current tenant’s stay, making them responsible for the repairs. Upon further inspection, we determined that this could not be possible,” Olsen states. “We found mold and other signs suggesting that the water leak had been going on for a long time. This made it clear that the water leak was already present at the time the current tenants moved in, and it was most likely caused by the previous renters, who have since moved away and gotten their safety deposit back. This means that the property owner is now responsible for the repair and restoration costs, putting them in a tough situation that could have been easily avoided by thoroughly inspecting the property when the previous tenants moved out.”

Olsen adds that the property’s owner has yet to make a decision on what to do, placing the project on hold for the time being. Despite this, the next step on their path is to hire a water damage restoration and mold removal expert to clean up the affected area. He adds that he urged the client in question to make a decision as soon as possible, as carrying out these repairs is of vital importance to guarantee the integrity of the property and prevent the mold growth from becoming a health hazard. Additionally, he has put the company’s top team at the disposal of their client, asserting that they are a call and a visit away from solving the issue.

Utah Disaster Specialists enjoys a distinguished reputation as one of the best disaster cleanup companies in the area. Other companies were not willing to help me without my landlord’s permission but Daryl went out on a limb and was willing to help me. Flooding is always a very stressful situation, and I was very appreciative that someone was able to help me. I highly recommend this company.”
