Albuquerque, NM based Will Ferguson & Associates is pleased to share that their legal services will continue to be available over the coming months. They reassure their clients that their legal team will be on hand to provide assistance in the event they meet with an accident on the road.

Despite the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, the auto accident law firm recognizes that members of their local communities still have to make use of their vehicles for their daily commutes as well as other essential trips. This in turn means that people will inevitably be involved with car accidents at one point or another, and the victims of these accidents will still require capable legal representation when the situation calls for it.

Will Ferguson & Associates states, "While the pandemic poses certain challenges, we are confident that we can navigate any obstacles in order to give our clients the legal representation they deserve. We consider safety to be of paramount importance to both our attorneys and staff as well as our clients, so you can rest assured that we are doing everything in our power to minimize the risk of infection between all parties involved. This means we will limit in-person contact wherever possible. Fortunately, we already had a robust system of digital communication and outreach in place when the social-distancing guidelines were launched, and those systems continue to be active to this day."

This means that the firm's clients will be able to utilize their phones, emails, social media accounts and even the Will Ferguson & Associates website's built-in chat functionality to get in touch with a legal representative who can fight to get them the compensation they are due. Will Ferguson & Associates also observes that it can be difficult for the victim of an accident to pay their bills without receiving compensation in the best of times. Given that they will likely have to pay for medical aid, vehicle repairs, and so on, the lack of compensation can force them to take on large amounts of debt in order to survive. Today, however, the damage done to the economy will likely mean many families will find it virtually impossible to endure the financial fallout of sustaining injuries or damage to their vehicles following an accident. Often, the only recourse they will have is to seek counsel from a legal expert who can seek compensation on their behalf.

The firm explains that vehicle collisions in Albuquerque are caused by a number of reasons, including distracted driving, dangerous road conditions, intoxicated driving, faulty auto parts, drowsy driving, and so on. Practicing defensive driving can minimize the risk of an accident to a certain degree but it does not eliminate the risk altogether. The most safety-conscious driver in the world, the firm explains, would still have to drive on the same roads as others who may not be as careful. On the other hand, a fault in their vehicle or poor conditions on the road may make it impossible for them to control their vehicle properly. Should an accident occur in such a situation, the victim is advised to enlist legal aid as soon as possible. This will increase their chances of receiving compensation.

The benefits of working with a professional can be gleaned from the firm's client reviews. In a 5-Star Google review, for instance, Nelle Pickar says, "Corinne Holt is a force to be reckoned with and exceeded any expectations I had from a lawyer. Her calmness, matched with tenacity and a strong sense of justice, makes her the perfect lawyer. Not only that, but every single one of my interactions with any Will Ferguson & Associates personnel was a pleasant experience. 10/10 would recommend them to anyone needing legal representation. I wouldn't dream of using any other lawyer."

In a similarly high-rated review, Ashley Ahee says, "Such a great experience for a rough time in our lives. We got in an accident caused by the other driver's negligence. Every single time I called Tina or any of the office staff, they always treated me with dignity and answered all of my questions. With Will Ferguson & Associates, I didn't need to worry. They always kept me informed, and they took care of everything! I highly recommend giving them a call if you're in need of a really amazing law office. I will definitely use them again if the need ever arises. Thank you, Will Ferguson & Associates, and staff!"
