residency training at Christus Spohn Memorial Hospital in Corpus Christi, Texas, and then completed her Sports Medicine Fellowship at the University of Texas Southwestern in Dallas. She is a leader in preventive care and she keeps herself up-to-date through continuing education and training. She has board certifications in both family practice and sports medicine from the American Board of Family Medicine, and she is a distinguished fellow of the American College of Sports Medicine.

Their services include laser and intense pulse light treatments, body filler skin tightening, butt lift, Botox, vampire facelift and microneedling, dermal fillers for wrinkles, Kybella, weight loss medication, hyaluronic acid fillers, and chemical peels. Those who are interesting in their location may want to check out their GMB listing.

Dr. Camden uses the Rohrer Spectrum Laser to provide laser and pulsed light treatments that are designed to alleviate various kinds of dermatologic conditions. Intense pulsed light (IPL) treatments are for getting rid of vascular and pigmented lesions, and reducing acne. The Spectrum Laser can also be used for removal of unwanted body hair; treatment of sun-damaged skin and superficial wrinkles with an Erbium Yag laser; long pulsed Yag vascular reduction for getting rid of unsightly veins; and tattoo removal.

The New Medical Spa uses dermal fillers for body filler skin tightening. The dermal filler is injected to tighten and lift skin anywhere on the body. Also, dilute Radiesse dermal filler in the body may stimulate elastin and collagen, causing new skin to grow. This treatment is composed of two 20-minute treatments with comfortable injections just under the skin. Results can be seen after three weeks and may last from two to four years.

The New Medical Spa also offers the Sculptra butt lift that has been popularized by the Kardashians. With Sculptra, the "planted seed" will stimulate tissue growth where it is needed. It is composed of two 20-minute treatments and the results will last from two to four years.

Meanwhile, Botox is used to decrease the appearance of wrinkles in and around the eyes and forehead. It may also be used to treat lazy eye, chronic migraine, excessive sweating or hyperhidrosis, and urinary incontinence. Botox is composed of very small quantities of the bacterium Clostridium botulinum and it is designed to interrupt the signals that cause muscle contractions, thus allowing the facial muscles to be fully relaxed. The final result is the smoothing out of the skin, thus reducing wrinkles and fine lines, lasting for around 12 to 16 weeks. Meanwhile, XEOMIN® is an analog alternative that works in the same way as Botox, and may be recommended in place of Botox.
