Hale County, Ala. ? The Cash Bond system has been under a lot of scrutiny lately across America. The cash bond system allows those with more money, more freedom, however; there are current solutions that, if put into place, could help. Alabama Bail Bonds is a bonding company in Hale County, AL that is highlighting the cash bond system and updates to potentially be on the lookout for.

Bail bonds are used to free those awaiting trial for a crime. For those unable to post bail they must remain in jail until their trial date. Currently, a large amount of people across the country are pushing for ?presumption of release?. If this were to become the new standard, prosecutors would need to prove the need for someone to be detained, rather than a bail being set. Those detained would only be anyone who is convicted of an extremely serious crime.

Switching to this system could save taxpayers money and help those in low poverty. Some regions across the country are taking it a step further by setting up onsite childcare, transportation and flexible court schedules for those in need. These new systems will potentially eliminate bond service in Hale County, AL.
