Greater Life Chiropractic, a chiropractic clinic based in Charlotte, NC, has reopened after being closed for some time due to the COVID pandemic. This was revealed by founder Dr. Grant Lisetor who hastened to add that they are taking many precautions to protect their patients and staff from Covid-19. They have been providing a virtual waiting room where a patient calls into their office and they will check the patient in and then call the patient back and then let him or her know which room is ready for the patient. Those who would like to know more about Great Life Chiropractic may want to check out their social media pages, such as their Facebook page.

Dr. Grant Lisetor says, "We're happy to announce that our clinic is fully open to serve our patients. This means that we are continuing to help our practice members achieve a life of optimum health through scientific, specific, chiropractic adjustments. And don't worry because we are taking many precautions to ensure the safety of both our patients and our staff. Anyone with any type of flu-like symptom is not allowed to enter the office, and everyone has to sanitize or wash their hands prior to going back to be adjusted. Between each interaction with a patient, our doctors wash their hands or apply hand sanitizer. After the treatment, the table, keyboard, mouse, and chairs in the adjustment room are sanitized. And every doorknob in the office is sanitized every 15 minutes.?

Furthermore, everyone who wants to enter the clinic has to have his or her temperature taken and those who are found to have a fever above 100 degrees are asked to leave and to self-quarantine. They are happy to announce that so far, no one has yet attempted to enter the office when they have a fever.

There is a specific process followed by Greater Life Chiropractic for every patient. Everyone has to be a practice member by filling out a new practice member health application. This will help them understand any previous injuries and traumas that may have led to the patient's current health condition. A one-on-one consultation is provided to each patient to discuss the patient's health concerns and health goals, including the patient's health history in order to be able to provide the best quality of care possible. More about the chiropractic clinic may also be gleaned from their YouTube channel.

After the consultation, a complete muscle and nervous system evaluation is performed using NASA published space-certified technology. This enables them not just to find the location of the pressure in the patient's nervous system but also its severity. They will also take all of the necessary chiropractic postural x-rays to determine the kind of scientific and specific adjustment for each patient.

After thoroughly reviewing all of the information for each patient, Dr. Lisetor will come up with a customized, corrective care plan for each patient. And on the patient's next visit, a report of the findings is presented, including the analysis of the chiropractic postural x-rays and the patient's customized corrective care plan and the payment options.

Dr. Grant Lisetor earned his doctorate from Life University, which is considered to be the biggest and most advanced chiropractic school in the world. His expertise is in the upper cervical, Thompson, and Gonstead adjusting techniques. These are all low force, gentle and high speed techniques, and they are some of the oldest in the chiropractic profession. Dr. Lisetor also has extensive training in adjusting children and pregnant women.
