July 30, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Naperville, Ill. ? Over the next five years, DHL is going to be rethinking their packaging to stay up to date with the ever-changing demands of the shipping industry. With new emerging technology, companies are looking for ways to streamline the shipping process while creating minimal waste. DHL is working to recognize areas of improvement and adopt new packaging optimization techniques to stay on top of customer demands. A Naperville international shipping store, The Boxes Etc., is working to ensure that the residents and businesses of their community are informed of any updates within the industry.

With the number of packages being shipped on the rise, shipping companies are looking at ways to improve packaging. Each day, DHL ships an average of two million packages worldwide. In a recent Trend Report, DHL discusses how the optimization of packaging could significantly boost productivity, efficiency, and overall customer satisfaction. With so many packages being shipped, there is becoming a greater demand for sustainable packaging. Finding a balance between durability, the use of green materials, and aesthetically pleasing packaging, all while maintaining a reasonable spend is key to the future of packaging. Additionally, incorporating smart packaging technology such as smart labels or tags can help improve customer satisfaction by providing accurate updates on package condition and location.

For over 30 years, The Boxes Etc. has been serving the Naperville, IL community and surrounding areas, offering a wide range of shipping, printing and business services.
