Positive Group LLC Expands Herpes Dating Community Resources with Comprehensive Support Hub

June 08, 2026

Chicago, Illinois - June 08, 2026 -
Positive Group LLC has expanded its Meet Positives platform with enhanced resources specifically designed to support individuals navigating life after a herpes diagnosis. The dating and community platform, which serves people living with herpes and other sexually transmitted infections, has launched an expanded resource hub featuring medically-grounded content and a comprehensive guide for newly diagnosed individuals.

The expansion addresses a critical gap in support services for the millions of people who receive herpes diagnoses annually. According to World Health Organization data, approximately 3.7 billion people under age 50 have HSV-1, while 491 million have HSV-2. Despite these significant numbers, approximately 80 percent of people with herpes remain unaware of their status, highlighting the need for accessible information and community support.

Meet Positives operates as a specialized herpes dating site that eliminates the traditional disclosure barrier by creating a space where all members share similar experiences. The platform's recent version 3.0 update introduced enhanced matching capabilities, verified profiles, and an expanded blog section featuring resources tailored to the needs of HSV-positive individuals.

The newly launched guide specifically addresses the immediate concerns individuals face after receiving a positive HSV test result. The resource covers essential topics including medical facts about the virus, communication strategies, emotional processing, and practical steps for moving forward. The platform emphasizes separating fear from facts, noting that herpes is a manageable skin condition that does not significantly impact daily life for most people.

The Meet Positives platform utilizes advanced matching algorithms to connect individuals based on shared conditions, geographic proximity, and personal preferences. Members can browse profiles, participate in discussion forums, and access educational content through both the website and mobile application. The platform maintains strict privacy controls, allowing users to manage their information disclosure and report any concerning activity.

"When someone is just diagnosed with herpes, they often feel isolated and uncertain about their future relationships," said Michael Task, spokesperson for Positive Group LLC. "Our expanded resource hub provides immediate access to factual information and connects them with a supportive community that understands their experience firsthand. The platform transforms what could be an isolating diagnosis into an opportunity for genuine connection."

Beyond dating connections, the platform fosters a broader support community where members share experiences, concerns, and practical advice. The discussion forums provide spaces for individuals to learn about their conditions, exchange coping strategies, and build relationships based on mutual understanding and respect.

The platform's mobile application offers features including local connection options, safe communication tools, and full responsiveness across all devices. These technological enhancements ensure members can access support and connection opportunities regardless of their preferred device or location.

Positive Group LLC developed Meet Positives to address the unique challenges faced by individuals living with sexually transmitted infections. The company focuses on creating stigma-free environments where members can form meaningful relationships without the anxiety typically associated with STI disclosure. The platform serves users across multiple countries, including Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, the United Kingdom, and the United States.
