

PreciseGryp Reveals How Tweezers Affect Eyebrow Balance

Beaverton, OR based PreciseGryp has recently given advice on how people can use tweezers more effectively. The company explained that making features look balanced is important, as an unbalanced look creates a strange appearance.

Keegan Allen from PreciseGryp says: "Women and men alike use tweezers to clean up and shape their eyebrows. This must be done in such a way that the two eyebrows are exactly the same, creating a balanced appearance. Because the eyes are the facial feature that people notice first, having non-symmetrical eye features looks very awkward. Tweezing eyebrows, therefore, must be done with a precision tool."

The company advises having tweezers that are sharp, precise and user friendly, and they recommend their PreciseGryp Tweezers for helping to achieve balance. The tweezers have been sharpened using a twelve step process, which helps them stay sharp for longer. Additionally, they are aligned for further ease of use. The tweezers also come with a storage case, enabling the points to be protected and stopping them from going dull or becoming misaligned.

"Shaping eyebrows is all about lines," adds Keegan Allen. "With the PreciseGryp Tweezers, our customers can achieve the balance in their eyebrows that will make them look great."

PreciseGryp's tweezers are stainless steel and professional grade. They are specifically designed to always be sharp, helping to make quick and painless work of any eyebrow shaping job.
