September 17, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Parke Lawyers, based in Melbourne, Vic, Australia, have recently launched a new will disputing service. While they already have years of experience in helping people write and execute wills, they have found that there is a need to add the service to dispute wills. Further details about the service can be found at www.probatelawyer.net.au.

"A last will and testament is written to help execute the wishes of someone who is deceased," says Daniel Smith from Parke Lawyers. "While this goes well most of the time, there are several situations in which someone may feel that the will does not actually represent the last wishes of the deceased. They may, for instance, not have been of sound mind and judgement when they wrote it. Contesting a will is hard work but we have a team of experts on hand to help with this."

The probate lawyers employed by Parke Lawyers have years of experience in dealing with these types of situations. Their track record of success in court is impressive. Yet, 95% of disputes they take on are actually resolved before going to hearing, even if legal proceedings are issued. In most cases, challenging an unfair will is resolved through mediation. The lawyers are fully up to date with the strict time limits surrounding disputes and will help their clients adhere to these.

"Nobody genuinely wants to dispute somebody's will," adds Daniel Smith. "However, there are situations where these wishes seem so unfair that people simply cannot accept them. Because emotions often run high in these situations, things can easily get out of hand. This is why we are so proud of the fact that we have resolved 95% of our dispute cases without going to court."

Besides helping people to dispute a will, the company also offers services and legal advice in relation to any other matter that is linked to estates. This includes making and updating wills, estate planning, power of attorney, defending a will and assisting the executor of a will in terms of implementing the last wishes of the deceased. People are encouraged to contact Parke Lawyers to discuss the possibilities.
