March 11, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Permakill Exterminating Co., LLC, a family-owned and operated pest control service in New Jersey is offering ant control services. The company says that with spring on the way, homeowners need to stay vigilant about their pest problems to ensure a safe season.

During the spring season, the pest control service inspects the home inside and out to find areas that have pests or are conducive to pests. Carpenter ants are especially harmful to homeowners as they can cause extensive property damage if left unchecked. They are attracted to damp areas and can quickly form a nest in the house. Based on the preliminary inspection, the company offers external treatment if they believe that the carpenter ants are entering the house from outside and are not nesting in the house.

In case the carpenter ants are nesting inside the house the company can choose out of multiple treatments such as exterior power spraying, liquid application to basement sills, liquid application to floor/wall junctions in the basement and/or slab, application of dust under kitchen cabinets, application of dust in walls under kitchen sinks around water pipes, application of dust under bathroom vanity, around the toilet water pipe, around the showerhead, and under bathtubs, crack and crevice treatment in the kitchen and bath, application of dust in walls around vent pipes in the attic, application of dust in voids around pipes in the basement, application of dust in walls around pipes by the washing machine, and application of dust door jams in the basement where possible.

The company is so confident in its removal techniques that if carpenter ants reappear inside the house during the agreement period, PermaKill will treat the home again for no additional charge. The company also offers treatments for other kinds of ants such as odorous house ants, pavement ants, and grease ants. Customers can find out more about the company by viewing its GMB posts.

Permakill Exterminating also provides pest control services for bed bugs, mice, rodents, squirrels, bees, wasps, hornets, termites, cave crickets, ticks, moths, cockroaches, deer, earwig, fleas, mosquitos, and spiders. They offer one-time services or home protection plans that give year-round protection from pests. They also offer free estimates.

The company maintains that it is a local pest company saving it from the trappings of a franchise or a multinational company. Staying local allows the company to really understand its clients and the region and give them the high-quality personalized service that they deserve. The company is affiliated with EcoSmart, NJPMA (New Jersey Pest Management Association), NFIB (National Federation of Independent Business), NJBIA (New Jersey Business & Industry Association), and the NPMA (National Pest Management Association).
