Albuquerque, New Mexico - May 20, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Many residential and commercial properties alike are beginning to consider and opt for solar services to improve their energy costs. Skyhigh Solar Guys are offering such services to Albuquerque, NM residents. They have been in the business for a few years and have a qualified team of professionals, skilled and capable of delivering quality results.

There are several reasons people have been turning to solar power including the simple fact that it helps to combat greenhouse gas emissions. Solar systems target the sun as a pure, clean energy source. This reduces our dependence on fossil fuels in return and lowers our energy bills.

"We service clients looking to install solar panel systems, regardless of the reason. People use solar energy to heat their swimming pools, to provide electricity to their home and outbuildings, and even for water heaters," the manager said.

"Our Albuquerque solar pros offer installation, design, repair and replacement services. While solar panels are typically low-maintenance and hardly require service, there are instances when this might be necessary so we feel it's important to provide this service to our local family," the manager added.

Most people that switch to solar panels end up saving a lot on their electricity bill. It's not often eliminated because there are more factors than just installing a solar panel system. But the greatly reduced cost of powering a property seems to be well worth the up-front cost. Customers get a return on their investment soon after.

Skyhigh Solar Guys takes a personalized approach when providing services. They will send a specialist to the property to do an evaluation in order to draw up the best system for that particular property. They have to consider many factors when evaluating including how much sun or shade the roof receives and the slope, condition and direction as well.

When the specialist has finished drawing up a solar panel system they will sit down with the client to discuss everything. The company also handles the tedious tasks such as HOA approvals, permits, etc.

?We want our customers to be happy with their switch to solar and we feel that delivering high quality service is how they will achieve that satisfaction,? the manager said. ?Our solar specialists love what they do and it really shows in their work.?
