David L. Stegall of Risk Consulting & Expert Services is reaching out to highlight a newly published Forbes article entitled "More Trouble For Embattled Skincare Firm Rodan + Fields: Its Insurer Is Suing? The article delves into the current legal troubles that are being faced by Rodan + Fields.

According to the Forbes article, the multilevel marketing skincare company Rodan + Fields is facing new problems on top of the number of obstacles it has been contending with for the last few years. Now, its insurer has filed a Motion for Summary as to the applicability of coverage otherwise afforded in a liability policy issued to Rodan + Fields. Forbes asked David Stegall to comment on the Motion to help them in writing the article.

Stegall explains that what Ironshore (the insurer suing Rodan + Fields) is doing is neither uncommon nor unusual. He is quoted by Forbes saying, "It's basically a request by the attorneys for the judge to interpret Ironshore's policy rather than go through a litigation process." He says Ironshore wants the judge to say what the policy means and hand down a decision quickly, allowing the insurer to avoid drawn-out court proceedings.
