

MN Personal Injury Attorney Expresses Concern Over Truck Driver Negligence

July 15, 2021

Minneapolis, Minnesota - July 15, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

McEwen & Kestner, a Minneapolis, MN based law firm specializing in personal injury, would like to express their concern regarding truck driver negligence. Truck driver negligence is the number one cause of auto accidents involving large trucks, and such accidents are often the deadliest on the road due to the size of some of the vehicles involved. An 18-wheeler moving at high speed is likely to cause extensive damage and possibly death, and a negligent driver is all but guaranteed to find themselves crashing into other drivers, property or pedestrians. McEwen & Kestner - MN Car Accident Attorney specializes in personal injury cases, which includes accidents involving large trucks.

There are a number of reasons why truck accidents occur on the roads, says the personal injury firm. Many semi truck drivers are inexperienced, especially handling the slippery Minnesota weather conditions. Other truck drivers are exhausted from driving while others may be driving a vehicle that is not up to par. In some instances, reckless driving, speeding, disobeying the traffic signs, alcohol and/or drugs and distractions such as a cell phone may be to blame for a truck accident.

In 2019, over 360 deaths occurred on Minnesota roadways, according to the Minnesota Department of Public safety. Speed, drunk driving, unbuckled motorists and distractions, all of which can in some way be defined under negligence, were the main causes of this. McEwen & Kestner regularly reaches out to motorists to encourage them to follow the rules of the road and thus remain safe during their travels. They also recommend that those who get involved in accidents get an attorney as soon as possible.

There are a number of reasons why it is important to get an attorney following an accident. One of the main reasons has to do with how insurance works for truck accidents. Insurance providers are interested in avoiding having to pay any more than the absolute bare minimum. With an attorney to help, it is possible to force insurance providers to pay the maximum amount of compensation. Usually, insurers are not interested in paying for financial losses incurred due to injury or death as a result of a truck accident. Medical expenses, loss of income, loss of quality of life and the cost of rehabilitation are all costs that insurance companies should, in theory, help cover after a truck accident ? but they are often reluctant to do so.

?No one wants to admit or accept blame for a trucking accident,? says McEwen and Kestner. ?At McEwen & Kestner, PLLC, Minneapolis Truck Accident Lawyers, we will work with you to determine who should pay for this accident. Whenever there is a commercial truck accident, the results are usually devastating. This is because commercial trucks are so much larger than the typical highway vehicle. They can literally plow over a smaller vehicle and anything else in their path.?

McEwen & Kestner is one of the top Minneapolis personal injury firms in the region, and clients can be sure to get the very best service from the firm?s legal team. No matter what the situation surrounding the accident is, McEwen & Kestner has the knowledge and experience needed to produce great results. A number of clients have left excellent reviews of the experienced commercial truck injury law firm.

One Google review of the firm says, ?I have worked with this law firm many times in the past, present and hopefully future. They are top notch advocates who care about their clients and will put their heart and soul into obtaining the best result they can. They've assembled a tremendous team from Greg to Missy and the countless others there who work hard fighting against some of the biggest defendants in the country. If you think you have a case, it's worth a call to speak with them.?

Another pleased client says, ?It's a lengthy process. But the wait was worth it! I was compensated more than I first thought and was very grateful for all the efforts provided.? Many of the firm?s reviews offer similarly high praise for their efforts.

Those interested are welcome to contact McEwen & Kestner PLLC if they wish to discuss their case with a reputable injury attorney. They would be more than happy to help with a variety of different cases and one can be sure to get great results.
