

Zenapet Dog Immune Support Now Available at the Fermentation Farm in Costa Mesa

April 05, 2022

Costa Mesa, California - April 05, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Zenapet Dog Immune Support is now available at the Fermentation Farm located in Costa Mesa, a farm recognized for the beneficial probiotic yeast and bacteria it farms. They are more than just a fermentation kitchen in Costa Mesa but are a community of people who are very much interested in getting back to traditional, handcrafted foods that are densely filled with nutrients. They are focused on restorative and probiotic-rich foods that also contain electrolytes, B-vitamins, minerals, and collagen required for proper gut and immune system health and overall body wellness. The Fermentation Farm is dedicated to serving the public with the goal of healing.

Founded in 2014, the Fermentation Farm always uses high-quality local and organic ingredients while focusing on what is in season. Fermentation Farm was the highest-ranked eatery in California, taking the third spot on Yelp's top 100 restaurant list for 2022. It has a 4 1/2-star rating on Yelp, based on more than 460 reviews; a rating likely attributed to their highest standards.

Their goal is to follow the same standards for all items they produce and offer them as they are available. As a result, some of their products tend to sell out quickly. Thus, for those interested in a particular product, it is a good idea to call ahead to ensure that it is still available before they visit the store.

But eating healthy should not stop at what humans put into their bodies; enter Zenapet. Zenapet Dog Immune Support is a superfood immune booster supplement for dogs. It features a combination of ingredients that offer the nourishment dogs require to have healthier and happier lives. Its ingredients include vitamins B1, B2, B6 to A, C, D, and E to optimize the dog's health. It also contains four plant-based and nutritional ingredients: turkey tail mushroom powder, beta-glucan, resveratrol, and spirulina. The Zenapet Dog Allergy Immune Support Product offers several benefits: general organ function and immune system support, supply of antioxidants to fight free radicals, help with detoxification, support for fighting pathogens, heart health support, and increased energy and stamina.

Turkey tail mushroom powder is derived from a medicinal mushroom that has been used for centuries by the Japanese and the Chinese. Beta-glucan is a water-soluble dietary fiber. When absorbed in the body, beta-glucan activates the immune cells within the macrophages.

The Zenapet Dog Immune Support combines these ingredients to boost the dog's immune response system effectively. These offer benefits, including more energy and vitality, reduced kennel cough symptoms, less frequent seizures, faster post-operation healing, a shinier and brighter coat, added longevity for senior dogs, and quicker postoperative healing.

It's important to point out that a poor-quality diet for dogs can result in a poor immune system. Beyond their diet, a lack of exercise can result in excess fat because the dog cannot burn off any fatty foods. When a dog stores body fat, it promotes inflammation, resulting in excess inflammation hormones, making the dog prone to disease. The dog will experience recurring symptoms with a weakened immune system, such as skin lesions, loss of appetite, infection, fever, lack of energy, weight loss, and swollen lymph nodes.

The dog's immune system can also be suppressed by several factors, including pollution, allergens, parasites, bacteria, stress, lack of vitamins and minerals, hormone imbalance, UV light, antibiotics, hereditary disorders specific to breed, and vaccinations.
