Jochen Chiropractic & Wellness Center, a holistic and pain-free clinic based in Beverly Hills, CA that offers chiropractic care for auto injury victims also provides cupping therapy near me Beverly Hills residents can rely on when they have an auto injury. Cupping therapy, which is one of the traditional Chinese medicine (TCM) methods, may help in improving circulation within the body through the suction of the cups after the practitioner heats the inside of the cup. As the air cools inside the cup, a vacuum is created, which pulls the skin and underlying tissues towards the cup. Such is the traditional way of cupping but some modern cupping sets used a hand pump and rubber valve to produce the vacuum.

Because of the lifting of the skin and tissues by cupping, blood flow is improved, including lymph circulation. Better lymph flow means the white blood cells find it easier to clean up cellular waste and bring back the fluid to the blood stream. All of these things can may help with recovery. Furthermore, the lifting up of the skin may also help in loosening up adhesions and muscle tightness. Adhesions occur when there is a build up of scar tissue, such as after an injury. Collagen creates bridges or adhesions in the injured area to stabilize it but these adhesions can seriously inhibit movement and have to be broken down to allow better mobility. To help break down adhesions and scar tissue, massage and ultrasound therapy may also be used in addition to

Cupping therapy may also be used to promote a relaxed state through the stimulation of the parasympathetic nervous system. In this condition, the muscles are relaxed and the body's energy can be focused on repairing and resting. And aside from those who are injured, people may also benefit from the improved circulation. Muscular tension from physical activity may also be relieved through the cups being positioned on certain meridian lines.

At the center, in addition to providing a chiropractor near me Beverly Hills residents can go to, they also offer other health practitioners, such as licensed acupuncturist Jainen Shin who can provide cupping therapy. She will be positioning the cups on the patient's meridian lines and then instruct the patient to remain still for about 20 minutes. Cupping therapy will be provided to the neck, back, and shoulder to help relieve stiff muscles, decrease swelling and inflammation and provide relief to pressure points within the body. Cupping therapy has been noted to be effective in getting rid of stress and restoring muscular function. It has also been used for: coughs and colds; arthritis; stress; and headaches, including migraines. It may also help the immune system, allow relaxation, and improve the body's natural detoxification processes.
