JupiterSEOExperts.com, based out of Florida, made an announcement about its latest #1 Google search ranking for for term "Lawyers in Miami." Advertising and marketing methods have changed throughout the years for businesses, according to Jupiter's experts. With the emergence of new technology and a means to get information anywhere and on the go, people now turn to the internet for everything. This holds true for business professionals and lawyers who are looking to market their practice to more clients. Billboards and paper advertisements no longer have the edge as more and more business have increasingly shifted their ads online.

Business professionals can just as easily join the online bandwagon now. A range of online marketing methods are now available such as taking on search engine optimization services or opting for pay-per-click advertising to target keywords being used by online clients when looking for services in the area.

This ensures getting their practice on top of search engine results when online users type keywords in search engines which are directly linked to their websites. This strategy gives lawyers in Miami the edge over their competition and gives them to ability to turn multitudes of online users into actual business clients.

?Gone are the days of billboards and magazines where advertisers had to spend big bucks and cross their fingers in hopes that a customer saw their ad and liked it. With technology today we can see exactly where the buyers are and we can pinpoint exactly how to reach them at the very moment they are looking to engage with a business online,? says Joel Carlsen, founder and CEO of JupiterSEOExperts.com.
