Hilton Head Island, SC - There is no shortage of activities to do in Hilton Head for visitors, especially for families, by looking at the pages of the best visitors' magazine in the state.

101 Things To Do Magazine offers a list of fun Hilton Head Events for all types of tourists, including those traveling in groups or with their families. The print and online magazine is the perfect resource for finding out about the great things happening on the island. The magazine says Hilton Head is the fastest-growing island with a rapidly growing population due to the entry of seasonal residents. As a result, this exceptional destination is now explored by over 2.5 million vacationers every year.

Family visitors can do many fun activities, whether inland or in the waters. They can bond while exploring the beach on foot or by bike. Some might also get lucky to witness turtles hatching in the beach area.

The Best Visitors? Magazine also recommends visiting Coligny Beach Park. It's the nearest and has a seaside setting adjacent to Coligny Plaza with numerous shops, dining establishments, and other Hilton Head attractions. Kids will also be safe while swimming in the area since there are lifeguards. There are also changing rooms, showers, and restrooms open for the guests.

Those who love to cycle will also love Hilton Head Island's 12-mile stretch of Atlantic-facing beaches with a refreshing and inviting view. The island is also a destination and home to the most widespread bike path networks in the United States. Bike paths are just about everywhere.

Another must-visit spot on the island is the Harbor Town Lighthouse, located in the center of Harbor Town in the Sea Pines Resort district. This magnificent and iconic red-and-white-striped lighthouse is a navigation aid. It is also a first-rate museum, with displays of historical photos and artifacts that speak of the island's history.
