An eye center, based in Naples, Florida, has recently launched their brand new website. The site is designed to provide more details about both the practice and its doctors. Additionally, it now includes an easy to use 'contact us' form, enabling existing and prospective patients alike to communicate with the clinic.

"We offer incredibly advanced eye care technology at our clinic, something that we have long been respected for," says Dr. Dan Hachey from All Saints Eye Center. "We are so happy that we can now say our website is more reflective of our practice, incorporating new technology and digital media. We believe this will enable us to build better and more transparent relationships with our patients."

The new website now includes a Patients Portal, where people can keep track of their own experiences and treatment at All Saints Eye Center. Additionally, they have included an online test that people can take for free to determine whether they could be a suitable candidate for Lasik eye surgery. While the test is free and accessible online, patients do have to personally request a user name and password for the Patients Portal, as this guarantees the security and safety of their details. More information can be obtained on the clinic's website.

The clinic has received a huge range of positive reviews, with patients commenting on how happy they are with the service they received. "Love the personal touch you receive at All Saints," says Ann Marie Schneider. "Thank you to all."

The All Saints Eye Center is committed to delivering a high quality service to their patients. They employ a huge team of professionals in order to achieve this. At the same time, they believe in giving back to the community and the world at large. As such, they engage in regular charity work both in Florida and abroad. Details about their charitable work and how others can get involved is also shared clearly on the newly launched website.

Prospective and existing patients are encouraged to visit the new website and browse through the information available on it, as well as comment on their experiences.
