A golf accessories company operating out of Santa Ana, CA, is currently offering free personalization for any golf ball ordered online. This offer will run until the end of the holiday season. Through these golf balls with personal messages printed on them, people would be able to turn an ordinary gift for a golfer into something special, unique or even humorous.

"A lot of people poke a bit of fun at those who seem obsessed with golf, but that is done in an endearing way," says David Lowe from Worldwide Golf Shops. "Golf is a lifestyle and it has the potential to really take over your life. This is why avid golfers tend to receive quite a few golf-related gifts during the holiday season. Our personalized golf balls perfectly fits in with that, and it enables people to show their support for their friends and family who love to golf."

The message is printed in block text on the golf balls. People can include three lines of text, so each piece can become unique. The message can be supportive, witty or simply the name or nickname of the golfer. Available colors for the text include black, red, blue, pink or green, with some restrictions depending on the color of the golf ball chosen. Through the red and green options, the balls can look really festive by including the internationally accepted colors of Christmas. Traditionally, green is the color that represents nature, life, eternity, peace and hope, while red is a representation of the sacrifice of Christ. Red is also the color of holly berries, Santa's suit, and poinsettias, a traditional Christmas plant.

Worldwide Golf Shops is a popular online eCommerce destination that stocks all things related to golf, as well as providing people with useful information about the sport. Additionally, they regularly share funny golf videos, tips for golfers, and informational golfing articles through their social media channels, of which customers have been very appreciative. The new offer of personalized golf balls for the holiday season has been equally well received.

"I love that I was able to personalize my dad's golf balls," said one happy customer. "It was just a nice way to give something that matters to him, with a little message from myself as well."

Those who want to purchase the golf balls, or other golf clubs, equipment or accessories, are encouraged to visit the Worldwide Golf Shops' website: <http://www.worldwidegolfshops.com>.
