

Digital Marketing Agency In Perth Announces Website Launch

November 24, 2015

November 24, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

A web design agency in Perth, Western Australia, has announced the official launch of their new company website. The company has been providing web design and other services since their initial launch in the early 2000s.

Greg Culver, spokesperson for the company states, "It was time for us to up our game. We're a digital design agency, and as such, we felt that we should offer our customers a more modern technologically advanced website."

The site was launched in July, but Bloocow has been tweaking and fine tuning it for the official launch just a few days ago. Culver states that they have refined their services to meet the ever changing digital world, and that the site is constantly being updated with offerings for local clientele and others throughout Australia.

Culver says, "Although we're changing things regularly, in an attempt to better help our clients, one thing that will never change is our commitment to outstanding services." He says that the company believes that a strong relationship with clients must be built in order for that business to be trusted. The company assists businesses in building those trusting relationships, in order to help those businesses to grow.

Bloocow offers website design as well as Google advertising, social media and video marketing, search engine optimization, and business consulting, in addition to email marketing and other services. Culver says that businesses can get everything that they need from his company, eliminating the need to go to various other businesses to receive these services. He explains that as a one stop shop for marketing needs, businesses can save time and money with the company, giving them more focus on their actual business processes. They offer a number of marketing plans that are both flexible to meet business needs, and affordable for various budget limits.

The company's website provides a complete list of all services offered, with information on how each service can ultimately help businesses in their reach for success. Culver says that the new site will be regularly updated with information and new service offerings as the company releases them. Those who are interested may also want to check the YouTube Channel of the digital marketing company.

###

For more information about Bloocow, contact the company here: BloocowGreg Culver 1300 499 550 greg@bloocow.com 34 Possum Glade, Beeliar, Western Australia, 6164

Bloocow

Starting out in early 2000's, during the "prehistoric digital age", the team at BlooCow has experienced many changes. Their services have been refined to meet the requirements of the ever-changing digital landscape, constantly updating their offering.

Website: <http://bloocow.com/>

Email: greg@bloocow.com

Phone: 1300 499 550

Powered by PressAdvantage.com