MELBOURNE, VIC - November 02, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

LEAD Conveyancing Melbourne announced its relocation to a new building on Monday. The company have decided to operate at one of the prestigious and accessible establishments on Collins street. The high-end building houses various kinds of businesses.

LEAD Conveyancing Melbourne's new office is located precisely at Level 2, Suite 9, 454 Collins street. The new location is less than 2 kilometres away from the former office of the company. The reason behind the relocation is to have a bigger workplace and a place that is more accessible to the company's clients. The new office is right along Collins street and Williams street, a spot that is easier to locate and see while driving on the road.

LEAD Conveyancing Melbourne's new office location is an area of lots of businesses, offices and dining stores, the same as its former office. The new location is more convenient compared to the old location due to it having more dining areas around it, unlike the old area that has only less than 3 fast food outlets nearby. The new office has a cosy vibe due to it being newly renovated.

Trinh Thai, Legal Director and founder of LEAD Conveyancing Melbourne, talked about the company's decision to move its office to the new establishment by saying, "We think that most of our clients will find it fitting that we have decided to say goodbye to our not-so-new workplace. We are not saying that the old office is too old, but we believe that it is time to move on. Moving to a new location is not just for the benefit of our clients but also the betterment of our business. We believe that a fully-furnished, presentable office could speak about the people of that office."

Furthermore, Thai also stated that she is happy to see her colleagues appreciate their new workplace. As she said, her people's "well-being" is more important than the revenue of the company. For her, a company will always survive if it has inspired and lively workers.
