December 21, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Tacoma, WA: With the rising cost of gas, increased air pollution, and the need for convenience, electric bikes have become a more popular choice for those seeking alternative means of transportation. Tacoma-based Goodfella's Motor Company is now offering electric bikes as part of its lineup to help meet this demand. The company has been a staple in the Tacoma community since its inception in 1999. It is proud to be able to offer these sustainable vehicles as a greener transportation option for locals.

The market for electric bikes is projected to be worth $118.6 billion by 2030, demonstrating a compound annual growth rate of 10.5% from 2020 - 2030. This growth is due to increasing environmental protection awareness, rising government support for electric vehicles, and technological advancements that have made electric bikes more accessible and affordable. With this booming market, local dealership Goodfella's wants to make an impact by providing top-of-the-line electric bikes.

For over 20 years, Goodfella's Motor Company has been helping customers realize their dreams of owning a great car, motorcycle, or e-bike. The company is known for being a reliable source of high-quality, affordable pre-owned vehicles, and now they are expanding their reputation to electric bikes. The local dealership offers Bakcou and Delfast electric bikes, both of which have been praised for their performance and are highly regarded in the industry.

Convenience, environmental sustainability, and affordability are all factors that have put electric bikes on the rise. With Goodfella's new lineup, these vehicles are now accessible to everyone in the local community. The company looks forward to helping riders make an eco-friendly choice without sacrificing power or performance.

Goodfella's Motor Company continues to provide Tacoma locals with the best transportation solutions, from used cars and motorcycles to electric bikes. An extensive inventory of vehicles, top-notch customer service, and quality products are just a few reasons Goodfella's Motor Company has become a trusted business in Tacoma for over two decades.
