March 24, 2023 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C., is helping auto accident victims in Buford, Georgia, hold the party at fault accountable for their actions, and get compensated for their suffering.

Head-on collisions, rear-end accidents, wrong-way accidents, and drunk driving are just some of the scenarios that victims can find themselves in, due to the negligence of someone who might not have been paying attention to the road or may have been impaired while driving. The police officer who arrives on the scene is then tasked with making a judgment on who was at fault for the accident.

The police report also contains important details such as the name and contact information of the witnesses, a description of the accident scene including road and lighting conditions, evidence of whether either of the parties was under the influence of drugs or alcohol, testimonials, photographs, and license and insurance information for the drivers involved in the collision.

Kenneth S. Nugent talks about how the accident report may influence the legal proceedings by saying, "The lawyers representing the driver at fault, who most likely work for the insurance company, will question every single detail in the police report to paint a picture in which their client is absolved of all responsibility. Even if you suffered grave bodily injuries, they will show no remorse in pinning the blame for the accident on you, the victim, just to escape their liability for medical bills, property damage, and more. Whether the police report is in your favor or not, you can expect these legal professionals to put on a tough fight to deny what you are rightfully owed.?

Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C., one of Georgia's most accomplished personal injury law firms, comes to the aid of accident victims who are distraught following their ordeal and are being misled by the lawyers representing the defendant. The law firm will fight on its client's behalf and expose the truth, leading to a favorable settlement or verdict at the trial. The law firm also helps its clients find the right medical professionals to assess their injuries so that every possible future medical expense is accounted for in the compensation.

"I have been helping accident victims for over four decades," Ken says. "I've faced every kind of legal intimidation in the courtroom while defending my clients. I have intimately witnessed how the legal system works to prevent victims from getting the justice they deserve. With me and my team on your side, you have the advantage of 42 attorneys with over 350 years of combined experience who care about your case and want to see you succeed.
