April 25, 2023 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Baltimore, MD - Managed IT Tampa, a leading technology company based in Baltimore, is excited to announce the launch of a new website created by its founder, Harold L. McNett. The website, titled "Was Tampa Called Tampa?" delves into the history and etymology of the city's name, offering a unique perspective on this vibrant Floridian metropolis. See this website for more information: <https://www.managed-it-tampa.com/>.

Harold L. McNett, the owner of Managed IT Tampa, has always been fascinated by the city of Tampa and its rich history. With this new website, he aims to shed light on the origins of the city's name and provide a comprehensive resource for those interested in learning more about Tampa's past.

"Was Tampa Called Tampa?" offers a plethora of information, including historical facts, trivia, and even some local legends surrounding the city's name. Visitors to the website can expect to find a wealth of knowledge on the subject, as well as engaging visuals and an easy-to-navigate layout.

"The history of Tampa is often overlooked, but it's such an interesting and important part of Florida's past," said Harold L. McNett. "I wanted to create a platform where people could learn more about the city's origins and how it has evolved over the years. With 'Was Tampa Called Tampa?' I hope to spark curiosity and inspire others to dive deeper into Tampa's history."

As the owner of Managed IT Tampa, McNett is no stranger to the world of technology and innovation. His company provides businesses with comprehensive IT solutions, including managed services, cybersecurity, and cloud computing. With the launch of "Was Tampa Called Tampa?", McNett combines his passion for technology with his love for history, offering a fresh and exciting look at the city of Tampa.

"Was Tampa Called Tampa?" is now live and can be accessed at www.wastampacalledtampa.com. For more information about Managed IT Tampa and its services, visit <https://www.managed-it-tampa.com/> or call 443-308-2290.
