NurseRegistry, a nurse staffing agency in Palo Alto, CA, which had previously covered what concierge nursing is, has now released a guide to becoming a concierge nurse, particularly the steps to take and the requirements. They want to emphasize that becoming a concierge nurse is a sought-after career path for RNs who want to offer uniquely high-quality and personalized care to their patients. A concierge nurse offers medical support and assistance to patients outside of a clinic or hospital setting. They work independently, outside the conventional healthcare system, and provide a broad range of medical care and services that are personalized to meet the specific needs of their clients.

There are three basic steps to take in becoming a concierge nurse. The first step is to get the required education and certifications. For an individual to become a concierge nurse, they have to become an RN. It is important to note that there are several paths towards becoming an RN. These include: earning an associate degree in nursing (AND), getting a bachelor's degree in nursing (BSN), or finishing a hospital nursing program. After receiving an RN license, nurses can get additional certifications to become specialists in certain areas, including health advocacy and wellness coaching.

The second step to becoming a concierge nurse is to get the appropriate work experience. This means that having a robust foundation in nursing experience and practice is vital for concierge nurses. RNs can obtain the proper work experience by working in various kinds of healthcare settings, including clinics, hospitals, and private clinics. In addition to clinical experience, they also need to have strong interpersonal and communication skills, which they can develop by attending professional development opportunities, such as leadership training, communication workshops, networking events, and trade shows.

The third step for becoming a concierge nurse is to build a professional network. Nurses can join various kinds of professional organizations to help develop their networks, such as the National Association of Healthcare Advocacy Consultants or the American Nurses Association. These organizations may be able to assist in connecting with other healthcare professionals and continuing to be updated on industry trends.

Those who choose a career path in per diem nursing at NurseRegistry enjoy all the benefits of a freelance nurse without having to go through the hassle of securing placements. Concierge nurses who partner with NurseRegistry enjoy the benefits of scheduling flexibility, private clients, and choosing their specific rates, without having to look for their own clients because NurseRegistry will match each nurse with specific clients and facilities.

Melissa Fischer, LVN, CEO of NurseRegistry, says, "It is important to note that the stress of being completely independent and establishing your own network can be a bit daunting. What if you could work with an agency that assisted you in finding clients while being able to dictate your own rates and schedule? That is exactly what NurseRegistry offers you as a per diem private nurse. We are a leading nurse staffing agency in California and have countless private duty clients and opportunities."

There are various reasons why nurses usually want to partner with NurseRegistry. These include the ability to create their own schedule; control their own pay; choose their own job placements; access to a wide range of placements; and a team that supports the concierge nurse.

NurseRegistry is a nurse staffing agency that provides registered nurses (RNs) and licensed vocational nurses (LVNs) on a per diem basis to both private clients for private duty nursing and local healthcare facilities that need help with coverage, such as hospitals, rehab and treatment centers, hospice, skilled nursing facilities, and more. They are committed to allowing the nurses to control how much they earn, where they work, and how much they work. They have mastered the process of connecting top nursing talents with these various types of clients.
