They are also available in various styles, including Scandinavian, modern, mid century, contemporary, retro, and industrial.

They want to point out that modern interior design trends take their inspiration from nature to provide a feeling of peace and calm that is the result of immersing oneself in places of natural beauty. One of their popular items is the Scandinavian bar stool, which is made from solid Ash timber and has a design that is appropriate for both modern and period homes. Made from natural timber, this stool is typically used in an interior with timber flooring or a timber element. The use of natural timber means that each wood stool is unique, varying in its woodgrains, knots, surface markings, and colour variations. The colour tones for each stool will be different from each piece of wood stool and will darken as the timber ages.
