

Forklift Academy Announces Expansion Of Forklift Certification Locations

December 28, 2015

December 28, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Forklift Academy, based in Agoura Hills, CA, is happy to announce that they will be expanding their locations across 2016. At present, they have offices in Los Angeles, CA, Memphis, TN, Miami, FL, Akron, OH, Atlanta, GA and Houston, TX. At these locations, and those they will be expanding to, people can obtain their forklift certification, which is valid across the country.

"We offer OSHA compliance forklift training that is designed to help people improve their career by learning new skills that will help them make a better living," says Art Merino, founder and CEO of Forklift Academy. "We offer training packages for both individuals and businesses and the courses have been designed to be easily accessible and affordable. We are really happy to announce our 2016 strategy to significantly expand our footprint across the nation."

One way Forklift Academy aims to expand their reach is by marketing their franchise opportunity. This opportunity enables others to become forklift trainers while running a popular business model and receiving full support from headquarters. It is through this method that the company is now already able to offer forklift certification in Los Angeles. People are encouraged to look into the franchise opportunity as well.

Those who have attended the training have been very happy with the teaching methods and results of their certification. "After failing to find any local forklift certification in my area I was very pleased to find the Forklift Academy to be a professional and legitimate online forklift training source," says Stephen E. "The course was well laid-out and easy to follow. A couple of steps did not have direct links back to the home page but were still easy to get back to the home page by going to the root directory. It was well worth the money and time."

The company is also quickly becoming one of the most popular places for forklift training Houston has to offer. People can complete their online training at a time that is convenient to them, and it enables them to quickly get to work and improve their career following course completion. The company is happy to see that they will be playing a significant role in improving industry standards and career opportunities.

The company is also quickly becoming a popular forklift training company in the Houston area. The Houston office covers most of the state of Texas by offering onsite training to companies in Dallas, San Antonio, and Austin. The company has reach a milestone of training over 25,000 forklift operators throughout the United States. Those who have attended the training have been very satisfied with the training modules and the quality of training. The company have received more 3,000 reviews with 5 stars.
