Coronado, CA business Perfectly Vivid has announced that a further use for their tactical flashlight has been found and that is for crowd control. They have been encouraging people to share the ways in which they have used the product and have been very happy to see the wealth of original responses. The latest way it has been used is as a tool for crowd control, which was made possible due to the attached orange wand. Full details about the flashlight are available through <http://perfectlyvivid.com/>.

Dr. Christopher Vogelmann, who founded Perfectly Vivid, says: "When we set out to ask people how they used our flashlight, we wanted to show the world just how versatile it is. We didn't expect, however, to see this kind of response. The flashlight is clearly even more versatile than we had hoped for and to see it being used in crowd control, to help keep people safe, is just fantastic."

Those who want to talk about how they have used the flashlight are encouraged to do so through the company's Facebook page. The page can be reached at <https://www.facebook.com/perfectlyvivid/?fref=ts>. It offers people an opportunity to ask questions as well as to share information about the different ways they have used the tactical flashlight. It is proving to be a very popular social media platform. Various uses for the flashlight, such as a night light for children and as a self-defense tool, have been listed.

"I want to share how I have used this flashlight," says Sean A. "I noticed in the reviews that a lot of people weren't too sure what the wand was for. Well, I work in security and I use it in order to keep crowds under control when it is dark. For me, this tool has been a life saver. It makes me feel more in control, which in turn enables me to do my job properly and actually protect people when they congregate together."

People are encouraged to visit the company's website or Facebook page in order to gather more details about the flashlight and its many uses. Made of highly durable, yet lightweight aircraft grade aluminum, it has many different uses.
