Go Industries Inc., a well-known name in the automotive accessories market, has announced a new addition to its lineup—mudguards for dually trucks. This latest release broadens the company's already extensive range of products, aiming to provide heavy-duty protection for trucks with dual rear wheels, which are often found in rough environments such as construction sites and farms.

Mud flaps are essential for protecting a vehicle's paint and body from debris like rocks and mud kicked up by the rear wheels. This is especially true for dually trucks, whose dual-wheel setup makes them more prone to such damage. The new mudguards from Go Industries come in various styles—including Classic, Stainless Steel, and Diamond Tread—offering choices that suit different looks and performance needs.

"As a company with over forty years in the automotive accessory business, we understand what truck owners need," said a representative from Go Industries. "Our mudguards for dually trucks are designed to provide top-tier protection and lasting durability, keeping vehicles in great shape even in harsh conditions."

With roots going back to 1978, Go Industries has been serving not just individual truck owners, but also sectors like law enforcement and custom manufacturing. Based in Richardson, Texas, the company is known for quality and inventive products, always adapting to meet the varying needs of its wide-ranging clientele. For more information about their comprehensive offerings, you can visit their website.

In keeping with their tradition of prioritizing customer needs, Go Industries puts their new mud flaps through rigorous tests to ensure they are tough and effective. Made from high-grade, non-recycled rubber, these mudguards promise durability even in challenging situations. They're compatible with leading truck brands such as Chevrolet, Ford, and GMC, making them a versatile option for many drivers.

The new product line also offers additional accessories, like bracket sets, to make installing the mudguards easier. Every product is designed to fit harmoniously with specific models of dually trucks, meeting both practical and aesthetic needs, with a range of designs and finishes available.

"To make the installation process simple, we've designed the mud flap setup to be hassle-free and quick, requiring minimal tools," the representative mentioned. "This way, our customers can spend more time enjoying their trucks without the stress of difficult installations."

Mud flaps have long been valued for their protective role, spurring ongoing improvements in their design. With these new offerings, Go Industries aims to strengthen its position as a leading source for truck accessories.

These new products are now available on Go Industries' website. Customers can browse detailed specifications and find mudguards that fit their needs. Additionally, the company offers resources such as how-to videos and downloadable guides to help with installation and care.
