The Menlo Park, CA office of Rooter Hero Plumbing has released information pertaining to the causes of water pressure problems in the San Mateo County area. The company has noticed an increase in calls from people in the area who are concerned about low water pressure. Based on research and experience, the company concludes that the cause of most of these problems is due to leaks from corroded water pipes. They encourage residential and commercial property owners to contact them as soon as possible to check if their water pipes are at risk. Jessica Perrault, who is a spokesperson for Rooter Hero Plumbing of San Mateo County, says: "There have been a lot of complaints as of late from people stating that their water pressure has been very low. What we found to be the problem in the majority of the situations was that pipes in these homes are simply aging. Aging pipes that show signs of corrosion are more likely to develop leaks, which ultimately leads to lower water pressure.?"

Menlo Park and residents of other community in the San Mateo metro area encouraged to contact Rooter Hero Plumbing when low water pressure exists to save money on utility costs and to prevent flooding, slab leaks, or other potentially devastating water issues.

What many homeowners don't realize is that with most low water pressure incidents, the water is flowing at the same rate," says James Cardell, one of Rooter Hero Plumbing's licensed, master plumbers. "It's just not getting to the taps because it's being diverted wherever the leak in the piping system exists. Therefore, customers are paying the same, if not more, for water usage even though the pressure is low."

Rooter Hero Plumbing is one of the few plumbing companies in the area that offer a 100% customer satisfaction workmanship guarantee, 24/7 emergency service, and a flat fee for all plumbing services. As such, they are quickly becoming the preferred provider for residential and commercial property owners alike who need water line repair in San Mateo County before pipe issues escalate.
