April 20, 2015

April 20, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

April is National Records and Information Management Month (NRIMM) and the third week in particular is Organize Your Files Week. To celebrate this, Cestari Kitchen has pointed out the many innovative ways to use chalkboard labels when people are organizing their files. Additionally, customers can enjoy a special offer of a free chalk pen with their purchase of a package of Cestari Kitchen Elegant Pantry Labels on Amazon.

"We really want to highlight National Records and Information Management Month," says Susan MacDowell from Cestari Kitchen. "With the Cestari Kitchen chalkboard labels, people can become really creative in how they celebrate this month, and it can benefit their overall life by becoming more organized as well."

The chalkboard labels are incredibly versatile. They can be used on a variety of materials, such as glass or metal containers, plastic trays, wooden boxes and more. Besides being versatile, they are also very beautiful and make organizing more fun.

"We have seen people use the Cestari Kitchen chalkboard labels at weddings, for instance," added Susan MacDowell. "The bride and groom will put them on wedding favors with the name of the guest and their table number on it. As such, it is multifunctional, very unusual and original and, most of all, affordable."

In light of Organize Your Files week, Cestari Kitchen has also released a number of hints and tips on how to use the labels properly. The labels can easily be used on file boxes, and the free chalk pen can then be used to indicate what is contained in each box. Organizing a home in an almost business-like fashion may seem slightly rigorous, but it is actually very beneficial. Additionally, the Cestari labels are really functional and add an element of decoration as well. It is also for this reason that many people use the labels to decorate glass jars, containing things like jam or pickled goods. Alternatively, they are used to organize and tidy craft products, like buttons, needles, glitter and more.

One pack of Cestari Kitchen chalkboard labels contains 52 stickers in different shapes and sizes. All of them are reusable, as the chalk can simply be wiped off, after which something new can be written on them.

Additionally, their quality is guaranteed to be superior to that of cheaper alternatives. This is in part due to the unique texture of the labels, which stops them from having a glare as well.

NRIMM is something that not many people are aware of. However, Cestari Kitchen wants to highlight it and demonstrate that it is actually an important month to take into consideration. As can be seen through the chalkboard label products on http://www.amazon.com/Chalkboard_Labels, keeping things neat and tidy is a lot of fun and it certainly helps to improve life as well, as people will no longer waste time trying to find things, or cluttering up their lives and homes.
