Her Pow has launched Organic Pretend Food Choices, a 125-piece pretend food toy play set. The ultimate kitchen set is intended to teach healthy eating and allow kids to engage in imaginative play. A whole six-piece pizza pie is included as is organic macaroni and cheese and ice cream. The set of miniature plastic toys is suited for boys and girls three-years-old and older.

Toddlers can pretend to shop for groceries, work in the kitchen, and prepare meals. Custom artwork has been used to create realistic-looking play foods and cartons. There are also fun food fact labels so kids can learn about organic varieties. All four food groups are included in the set. The pieces can also be used as accessories for other kitchen play sets while kids can play and be imaginative for hours.

From grocery cart play to setting up pretend shops, the pretend foods and accessories are safe whether a child uses them for play or has the urge to throw them around. The plastic food set also consists of a waffle and butter, red apple, green apples, asparagus, bananas, carrots, broccoli, cauliflower, and a whole miniature chicken. It also features eggs, a cucumber, French fries, strawberries, hamburgers, hot dogs, organic milk, French bread, crackers, potatoes, and ice cream cones and more.

Children can engage in hours of educational play. The product is suited as a gift for small children and even used in preschools and doctors' offices. Shipping weight is 1.9 pounds. Organic Pretend Food Choices is available on Amazon for purchase now, for just $29.99 with free shipping on orders over $49.

The company guarantees toddlers will enjoy making pretend meals, although attempting to actually eat the pieces may result in a broken tooth.
