

Casino Life Magazine Expands Featured Editorial Casino News Coverage

August 05, 2026

August 05, 2026 -

Casino Life Magazine is expanding the focus of its Featured Editorials section as the publication continues to develop its long-form coverage of the international casino industry. The section brings together executive interviews, casino profiles, market analysis, event reporting and features examining the businesses and individuals influencing developments across the global gaming sector.

The Featured Editorials section sits alongside Casino Life Magazine's regular industry news coverage and provides space for more detailed examination of individual companies, casino properties, executives and emerging industry developments. Recent editions have covered casino operations across the United States, United Kingdom, South Africa and Asia, reflecting the international scope of the publication's readership. The latest editorial features for casino news are available through Casino Life Magazine.

Casino Life Magazine has covered the international casino sector since its launch in 2005 and publishes ten magazine editions each year. Its wider editorial output covers casino operations, gaming industry developments, manufacturers, suppliers, technology and business news, while the Featured Editorials section allows individual subjects to be explored in greater depth.

Peter White, Owner of Casino Life Magazine, said, "The Featured Editorials section gives the publication an opportunity to look beyond individual news announcements and examine the people, properties and businesses behind developments in the casino industry. Long-form interviews and features provide additional context around how the sector is changing and allow industry professionals to discuss those developments in greater detail."

Recent editorial coverage demonstrates the range of subjects incorporated within the section. In July, Casino Life Magazine published a feature examining The Nash in New Hampshire and the state's charitable casino model, alongside an interview with South African casino executive Bryan O'Connor discussing the development of Time Square as a casino-led entertainment destination.

Other 2026 features have examined the redevelopment of Bally's Casino Newcastle, the opening of Cadence Crossing in Henderson and the position of M Resort within the Las Vegas casino market. Casino Life Magazine has also interviewed executives associated with Delaware Park Casino and examined the introduction of Aristocrat on the Square at Empire Casino in Leicester Square.

Executive interviews continue to form an important part of the Featured Editorials format. Earlier coverage included a discussion with VICI Properties Chief Executive Edward Pitoniak examining the company's development and international expansion, while another feature looked ahead to Global Gaming Expo Asia through an interview with Yip Je Choong, Senior Vice President of the commercial division for the Asia Pacific region at RX.

The section also provides Casino Life Magazine with a platform for reporting on broader operational developments affecting land-based casino businesses. Subjects covered across the editorial archive include casino design, management, technology, entertainment, hospitality, regulatory developments and industry exhibitions. This allows the publication to examine how individual developments connect with wider changes taking place across different casino markets.

The increased focus on Featured Editorials follows Casino Life Magazine's earlier announcement regarding the expansion of its overall international editorial coverage. That development outlined the publication's continuing focus on business reporting, executive interviews, industry analysis and coverage of events affecting casino operators and suppliers. Further background about the publication and its editorial development is available through the Casino Life Magazine announcement.

Casino Life Magazine's Featured Editorials archive also provides a record of changes within the casino industry over a number of years. Previous features have examined casino destinations, major gaming exhibitions, property developments, technology companies and senior industry figures, allowing current coverage to sit alongside reporting documenting earlier periods of change within the sector.

The publication states that long-form editorial coverage will remain part of its wider approach as the international casino industry continues to change. New property developments, investment, technology adoption, executive strategy and the evolution of casino resorts as broader entertainment destinations are among the areas providing subjects for continuing editorial coverage.

Casino Life Magazine is owned and operated by Outsource Digital Media Ltd and publishes content for a business-to-business audience consisting of casino operators, gaming businesses, suppliers and other industry professionals. Alongside its website and print publication, updates on new articles and casino industry developments are published through Casino Life Magazine on X.

As the Featured Editorials section develops, Casino Life Magazine states that it will continue using interviews, profiles and long-form reporting to document businesses, executives and developments across established and emerging casino markets.
