R'stoyours is proud to announce that they have added a new product to their line, which is the new French press that comes with coffee stencils and a coffee scoop. Designed to make exceptional coffee, it is already attracting various five star reviews. For R'stoyours, the coffee maker means more than just making the perfect cup of coffee. It is also about creating community refreshments that bring people together. The company has requested coffee lovers to like the R'stoyours Facebook page, where they can join an online community of coffee enthusiasts.

For company founder Rebecca Kauffeld, coffee is a personal passion and something that helps people to get up in the morning and start the day in a positive way. For many people, that first cup of coffee on the morning is a chance for the family to be together and start on a good note. During the day, people have coffee breaks with colleagues as well. Coffee brings people together in a positive way, and that is the image the company wants to share about the new French press.

The company is also involved in significant charity work. Currently, they are trying to raise money to enable women to have a natural birth. Their goal is to ensure that women's birth rights in this country are improved.

R'stoyours has created a new Amazon product listing for their coffee press. Full details about what the product is and what its benefits are can be found there. Since its initial listing, the product has received consistent five star reviews. People comment on the fact that it works perfectly and looks really good. They also appreciate the accessories that are provided with the press, and particularly the stencils. "Highly rated," says one customer. "Great value includes bonus steel coffee scoop and art stencils. The purist way to drink coffee. It always one to slow down and brew methodically."

People are encouraged to check out the new French press on Amazon or through the 'Our Website' link provided. They are also encouraged to Like the company's Facebook page, which will enable them to join a community of coffee enthusiasts.
