Randy John, a State Farm insurance agent who operates out of Tulsa, OK, is offering a wealth of different types of insurance packages, including homeowners insurance. State Farm has recently had a rate reduction in many parts of Oklahoma making homeowners insurance a little more affordable. Mr. John said insurance is designed to be affordable and easy to obtain. More details can be found at his website at <http://www.randyjohn.org>.

Randy John himself says: "Historically, people in this area have had to pay more for their insurance than in many other states across the country. This is mainly due to the fact that we're in the heart of tornado alley and often experience extreme weather. Last year, we had ice storms, wildfires, hail storms, and tornadoes. Each of these left significant property damage in its wake, so it is really no surprise that insurance companies are bumping their prices up. In recent years we have also experienced earthquakes, which is a relatively new phenomenon in Oklahoma. I can help homeowners find insurance packages that suit their needs, including their budget."

Insurance rates in the state of Oklahoma have been steadily rising for the past few years. This is a trend that has been continuing for nearly a decade now, and it is showing no signs of stopping. One local insurance agent even mentioned a double digit increase in the rate for two years running. Randy John, however, is confident that he can help his clients find lower rates, without having to compromise on quality.

People are encouraged to contact Randy John's agency as soon as possible for further information.
