

Go Industries Introduces Shovel Baskets for Work Trucks and Fleet Vehicles

August 12, 2026

Richardson, TX - August 12, 2026 -

Go Industries has introduced a new line of shovel baskets designed to give fleet operators, contractors, and municipal crews a durable storage solution for long-handled tools. The product addresses a common challenge in the trucking and construction sectors, where loose shovels and muddy equipment often clutter truck beds and create safety concerns.

The shovel baskets measure 72 by 18 by 10 inches and are built to fit pickup trucks and bed trucks. Each unit can be mounted permanently or configured to slide in and out, allowing operators to adapt the storage to their vehicle and workflow. The sides are crafted from perforated metal, a design that allows dirt to fall away and prevents accumulation within the box. The same perforated construction supports hose-down cleaning and helps wet equipment dry between jobs.

According to Go Industries, the baskets are engineered for straightforward installation and everyday use. The units are lightweight enough for a single worker to carry on and off a truck, and they can be mounted on top of Top Side Boxes for crews that need to maximize available space. The product is available in white or black powder coat finishes and provides easy access from the side of a pickup.

Beyond shovels, the baskets are intended to secure a range of long-handled tools, separate muddy gear from clean equipment, and reduce the risk of theft on job sites. The company reports that the baskets can be mounted on trailers, dump trucks, and semi-trucks, making them applicable across a variety of commercial and industrial settings.

"The idea behind the shovel baskets was to solve a practical problem that crews face every single day," said a spokesperson for Go Industries. "Tools get lost, beds get muddy, and equipment stays wet. A perforated, self-cleaning storage solution addresses all of those issues in a single product that one person can handle without help."

The spokesperson added that the design reflects feedback gathered from the fleet and contractor customers the company has served for decades. "Fleet managers and tradespeople told us they wanted storage that was simple to install, easy to clean, and tough enough for daily use," the spokesperson said. "The shovel baskets were built with those priorities in mind, and they fit a wide range of vehicles used across the industry."

The introduction of the shovel baskets expands the truck accessory catalog Go Industries maintains for commercial and law enforcement customers. The company positions the product alongside its existing storage and protection offerings, including headache racks, tailgates, and bumper systems.

Go Industries has served the trucking, fleet, and law enforcement markets since 1978.
